Art Unit 1713

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 and 14-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sanda, Jr, U.S. Patent 3,897,386.

This patent shows rubber compositions which comprise vulcanizable elastomeric diene rubber. See specifically the Abstract as well as column 3 lines 18+. The patent further teaches the incorporation of carbon black and silicas, see specifically column 4 lines 23+. The instantly claimed organometal compound is shown specifically at column 5 line 6. The Examiner acknowledges that each of applicants' instantly claimed ingredients is not exemplified within this patent's Examples. This patent does suggest to one of ordinary skill in the art to utilize each of applicants' instantly claimed ingredients in combination with one another. As such, the instantly claimed invention is seen to be rendered prima facie obvious from this disclosure since each of the limitations is
